BEST NEW CENTER – INTERIOR, U.S.

ANDY B'S DENTON / bowlandybs.com/location/dentontx
DENTON, TEXAS

Andy Bartholomy, owner of the Andy B's brand, serves up another stunner with this new location in Denton, Texas, while Howard Ellman of Dynamic Designs, winner of multiple past BJI Architecture & Design Awards honors, outdoes himself with the breathtaking interior of this sprawling entertainment center. Ellman's work on this project ensured that the patented Andy B's modern-industrial ambiance would meet what Andy B's describes as "some mid-century attitude," and the result is dazzling.

HYPERBOWLING
MIDDELBURG / hyperbowling.nl
MIDDELBURG, NETHERLANDS

If the interior design of this establishment seems to evoke the set of a film by Stanley Kubrick, famed director of "2001: A Space Odyssey," you're on to something. Co-owner Jasper Van Runsoever explains that, "What we tried to do concept-wise was take old elements from the classic, old-style bowling center and align it with the new HyperBowling game to get a positive tension between old and new. That's why we chose the Big Lebowski sign, which has a 1970s, retro feel, wood construction and a lot of old-style interior elements, but to give it a very modern, 2020 feel, combining it with HyperBowling, up-tempo music, and a very luxurious boutique area with high-end furniture." It may be more 2020 than 2001, but Bowltech Middelburg audaciously executes the futuristic vision Van Runsoever describes, embodying a tribute to the sport's earlier days.

THE LANES AT THE HOWARD

OSHKOSH, WIS.

The renovation of this center, which originally opened in 1927, began with an act of reverence for the building it involved. "We were looking to restore the building back to its former state; it had not previously been listed on the national or state historic register, so we went through that process," explains co-owner Carey Sharpe, who purchased the property in May 2017 with sister Jenna Golem, then spent more than a year renovating it. The endeavor to honor the building's history intensified from there, including the recreation of the wooden, above-ground ball returns, "which was very hard to do, because nobody makes wooden ball returns anymore," says Sharpe. "Oshkosh is not a very big town, and we kind of were looking for a big-city feel, something different than what would otherwise be located in our town." Combine that big-city vision with Carey and Golem's efforts to restore the elegance of the building's 1920s-era roots, and you have one of the poshest bowling hangouts the country has to offer.

BEST RENOVATED CENTER – VIP

THE BACK ALLEY
BUTLER, PA.

Originally opened in 1951, this center's renovation focused on bringing to the community of Butler, Pa., the likes of an experience it never had seen before. Enter Jeff Double at All About Reclaimed in Butler, who says that, "Butler is a very traditional community, and we have a lot of rustic and traditional design in venue space, and we wanted to go a different direction completely to make [The Back Alley] one of a kind." That involved bringing in "a lot of repurposed material, unexpected repurposed material," Double says. Those materials included trailer truck panels and reclaimed bowling equipment, which helped elevate the rustic and industrial ambiance to a level of experience locals likely will find to be a refreshing change of pace for the area.

BEST RENOVATED LOUNGE/RESTAURANT – U.S.

SPARE TIME WINDSOR LOCKS / Sparetime.com
WINDSOR LOCKS, CONN.

Lindsey Fortunato Todisco, the architect and interior designer responsible for implementing Bowl New England Inc.'s vision for a reimagined Spare Time Windsor Locks (Conn.), explains that, "It's a center with a lot of history, so we wanted to do a couple things that would honor that while also transforming the center into an FEC." Doing that, Todisco says, meant creating a space that "was fun but also sophisticated." That sophistication comes out in particular in the center's renovated lounge area, which now is poised to attract more corporate groups and is the first thing patrons encounter upon walking into the center. "We were going for really rich tones in that space, a lot of wood and stools and fantastic wall covering to bring a lot of sophistication into what is essentially a very family-oriented space."
